

Cornubia (formerly Carbrook) Lutheran Cemetery – Corner Wuduru Road and Mt Cotton Road Cornubia

The Lutheran Church was located at this site from 1875 until 1951. It was built by resident August Von Senden in the traditional ‘fachwerk’ style. Master craftsman, Von Senden, designed the jointed timber frame which was erected by locals, held together with timber pegs and in-filled with handmade bricks. The cemetery evolved behind the church. The oldest known grave on this site is that of Caroline Liesegang, who died in childbirth in 1875. At that time the area was known as Gramzow, having been named by the German settlers after a town in their homeland. During WWII a number of towns in Queensland with German names were re-named. This area became Carbrook, and in more recent years was further divided into Carbrook and Cornubia.
